Some of the most popular fabrics used for lingerie include silk, lace, mesh, and satin. When selecting a fabric, it is important to consider the type of garment you are making. For example, a sheer fabric like lace may be more appropriate for a nightgown, while a more opaque fabric like satin may be better for a bra.

Once you have selected your fabric, you will need to choose the right seam finish for your lingerie garment. Seam finishes can help to prevent fraying and make your garment more durable.
