History of Holy Cross Cemetery

Holy Cross Cemetery was founded in 1887 by the Archdiocese of Los Angeles. The cemetery was originally located in downtown Los Angeles, but it was moved to its current location in Culver City in 1939. The cemetery is now home to over 1 million graves, making it one of the largest cemeteries in the United States.

Holy Cross Cemetery has been the site of many historical events. In 1942, the cemetery was used as a temporary internment camp for Japanese Americans during World War II. In 1969, the cemetery was the site of the funeral of Robert F. Kennedy. And in 2014, the cemetery was the site of the funeral of Mickey Rooney.

Visiting Holy Cross Cemetery

Holy Cross Cemetery is open to the public from dawn to dusk. Visitors are welcome to walk or drive through the cemetery, and there are guided tours available by appointment. The cemetery also has a museum that houses a collection of artifacts from the cemetery's history.

Holy Cross Cemetery is a beautiful and historic place. It is the final resting place for many notable figures, and it is a popular tourist destination for people from all over the world.
